—Pickaway county came in for some excitement according to files of an exchange, dated March 31, 1865. The story says: The good people of the village of Carroll, Pickaway County, we are informed, are in feverish state of excitement over the supposed discovery of "oil diggings" about three miles distant from that town. Some time ago a well was dug, and the combustible emission therefrom became ignited, probably by letting down a candle to test the "damps." It continued to burn for several months, until the dry season came on, and water ceased to appear. Nothing was thought of it, however, at the time, as the petroleum contagion did not then exist. About a week since, someone acquainted with the fact suddenly was struck with the idea that it was an oil well. PLOT AGAINST SOVIET REGIME IS UNEARTHED

Most Dangerous Revolutionary Plan Expected to Result in Death of 60.

MOSCOW, April 5— (INS) — The veil of secrecy which has shrouded what is alleged to be one of the most dangerous revolutionary plots against the Soviet government in seven years, has been lifted sufficiently to disclose that the ringleaders of the Schachti district coal mining conspiracy in the Don Basin, were members of one of the most distinguished Monarchist families of the Czar's regime, it was learned today.

A score of the 60 persons implicated are almost certain to be convicted and sentenced to death.

The connection of six German engineers, two of whom have been released, has not been cleared up.

Prisoners Held

The prisoners are held at Rostov, where the Germans have just been interviewed by the secretary of the German embassy.

After the arrests by the Gpu (Soviet secret police) the information was circulated that the prisoners were implicated in a "Sabotage conspiracy" to hamper development of the coal mining industry in the Don basin. It was not until later that the political significance of the arrests became known.

The Bessergenevsky mine, one of the richest coal veins in the basin, is said to have been dismantled completely. Kolodub is alleged to have erased it from the record of mining properties in an effort to hide its existence from the Communists. The Novo-Azovsky mine was flooded.

British capitalists, the public prosecutor's office claims, had an interest in these mines.

Cite Bribes

There are vague hints that as much as $100,000 (in German marks) passed through Russian hands as bribes. The ringleaders, however, are said by the police to be Yemelyan Kolodub, a millionaire mine owner, who owned one of the finest racing stables in Russia before the revolution; his brother, Andre; his nephew, Cyril Kolodub; his relatives Bebenko and Matusenko, and a number of intimate friends. The elder Kolodub fought unsuccessfully during the Civil war to retain his properties. After the Red army captured the district, Kolodub is said to have edged his way in as manager of a large Soviet coal mine. Then he gave responsible engineering positions to relatives and friends.

Former owners of mines in the Don Basin, who had fled during the revolution, are alleged to have approached Kolodub with a proposition "to hold the mines for their rightful owners because in three years there will be armed foreign intervention and the Soviet regime will blow up."

To this end Kolodub, with the aid of foreign and Russian confederates, is accused of having prevented the exploitation of the most profitable mines confiscated from their former owners, ordered others flooded, caused explosions and wrecked machinery.

LONDON, April 5— (INS) — Despite emphatic denials by the Soviet government that Leon Trotzky, deposed Russian leader, had been shot, an exchange telegraph dispatch from Heslingfords today stated that diplomatic circles at the Finnish capital were informed that Trotzky had been accidentally shot while on a hunting trip.

The exchange dispatch stated that the bullet which struck the Bolshevist leader was accidentally fired by a companion of Trotzky on the trip.

The Russian legation at Helsingfors refused to either confirm or deny the report but it was generally credited by Communist circles there, according to the dispatch.

DROWN IN RIVER

COLUMBUS, O., April 5—(INS) — Leo Jones, 10, is dead at the home of his father, Lee Jones, today, drowning victim of the first spring school holiday. He slipped from a dam into the Olentangy river as he played with his companions. His body was not found for four hours, as his companions were too frightened to report the tragedy.

CITY PREPARES FOR OILING OF STREETS HERE

Other Legislative Matters of Civic Interest Taken Up By Council.

An ordinance instructing the Director of Public Service to advertise for bids for furnishing oil with which to oil the streets of the city of Circleville was received and read and then referred to the Safety Committee at the regular meeting of City Council on Wednesday night.

All members were present with President Goeller presiding.

Solicitor Adkins reported a meeting in the near future with officials of the State Board of Health, at which meeting several citizens are expected to attend, looking toward the purification of the Scioto river.

Report $54.70 Fines

Service Director Miller asked permission of council to dispose of the old fountain in front of the Court House, and this request was granted.

Mayor Hedges reported fines licenses and fees collected during the month of March in the sum of $54.70 and this report was rereived and ordered placed on file.

A claim against the city by Corbin Justice in the sum of $30.25 was presented, for repairs to automobile which he claimed to have been damaged by striking a broken lid over a manhole in South Court street. This claim was referred to the Committee on Law and Claims, together with the City Engineer and City Solicitor.

City Engineer Sweetman submitted plans, profiles and estimates for the construction of sanitary sewers on Edison avenue and Pickaway street: Clinton and Ohio streets and East Union street: the estimated cost of which is $6,500. This report of the engineer was received and placed on file.

Ask More Police Aid

A petition signed by George W. Snider and others asking for additional police protection in the south side of the city, was received and read, and the same referred to the Safety Committee.

Mr. Baker reported to Council that the County Commissioners were contemplating the paving of the alley south of the Court House, and wanted to know the amount the city would be willing to pay towards this improvement. Mr. Baker was requested to ascertain the probable amount of the cost which the city would be expected to pay, before council would obligate itself to this expenditure.

FARM BLOC IS HOPING TO GET SPEEDY ACTION

Will Attempt to Pass Farm Relief Bill Before Flood Legislation.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 5 — The senate farm bloc buckled down today to a drive for enactment of the compromise McNary-Haugen farm relief bill within the next week.

The bloc leaders were greatly encouraged by the action of corn belt farmers in unanimously endorsing the new bill at their Des Moines conference. The corn belt men, representing twenty-three groups of farm organizations, "cordially approve" the bill.

Would Precede Flood Bill

A movement meanwhile was started in the house to get the farm measure considered in the lower branch of congress before action is taken on the flood control bill. The farm bloc spokesmen, if defeated in this effort, will try to have their measure acted upon after flood control.

The new bill, after being sidetracked in the senate for two days for an appropriation bill, will be debated the rest of this week, its sponsors were hopeful of getting a final vote by next Tuesday or Wednesday. This would enable the house to pass upon it before the end of April, allowing a full month for presidential action and an effort to reenact it over a veto if it met White House disapproval.

The movement for immediate

SINCLAIR PART IN OIL "GAME" COST HIM MUCH

Has Been Divorced From Money That Would Make Several Wealthy.

By GEORGE E. DURNO
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 5—What price prosecution?

A much hampered inquiry today developed that Harry F. Sinclair's part in the oil scandals of the Harding administration has cost him some exceedingly important money during the past five years.

Since the winter of 1923, when the Senate first thrust an inquisitive nose into the ways and means by which he acquired a lease on the Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve, up to the present moment when he is about to stand trial for criminal conspiracy against the government in connection therewith, Sinclair has been divorced from a steady stream of money that should make a number of readers independently wealthy for life.

The oil man is convinced he is being "persecuted." He thinks that federal agents have been constantly on his trail, watching his every movement since 1923. Well he might if his friends are to be believed. They estimate that five years ago his fortune was in excess of a hundred million dollars—some placed it as high as $120,000,000.

Huge Sums

Today, the estimate ranges from

Every day in the Herald and Union Herald-Watchman campaign has been an opportunity to you. Every day until the end of the race is still a greater opportunity. You do not have to make a field for a new and untried article. You are not under the disadvantage of asking anyone to "try" it—there are a few people with whom you come in contact who have not seen these newspapers and appreciated their superiority as daily and weekly newspapers. There is no reason why you should not be able to secure a hearing from anyone you approach on the proposition. Alright, then, you have the chance to tell them, your friends, about the paper.

FORMER RESIDENT CRITICALLY ILL

The condition of Mrs. Harry Hische of Ringgold, Ga., has become alarmingly worse. Although she was supposedly recovering from a recent operation performed at the Surgeons' and Physicians' hospital in Chattanooga, Tenn., gangrene is now thought to have set in, and her condition is very critical.

Her sister, Mrs. M. J. Merris, of North Court street, has been with her.

EX-SENATOR AND RAILROAD FIGURE DIES OF PNEUMONIA AT AGE OF 93 IN NEW YORK HOME

NEW YORK, April 5—(INS)—Chauncey Mitchell Depew, chairman of the board of directors of the New York Central railroad, former United States Senator and long a prominent figure in the Republican party, died of bronchial pneumonia at his home here shortly before 4:30 o'clock this morning. He was 93 years old.

Mr. Depew suffered a slight chill upon his return from St. Petersburg, Fla., last week, and was confined to his home with a cold. Late yesterday his physician announced that his condition had taken a turn for the worse, but stated that his general condition was not alarming.

Despite the reassurances of the doctors, Mr. Depew's entire family was called to the home. The relatives at the bedside were Mrs. Depew, a son, Chauncey M. Depew, Jr.; a niece, Miss Anne Depew Paulding, and a nephew, Chauncey Depew Steele, of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y.

Although bronchial pneumonia is considered a serious illness for a man of Mr. Depew's age, physicians in attendance were confident almost until the end that he would recover, and the suddenness of his death came as something of a shock. He partook of some light nourishment yesterday and last night his temperature dropped from 104 to 102, according to a bulletin issued by his physicians.

Formal announcement of Mr. Depew's death was made by his physicians, Dr. Samuel W. Lamtert and Dr. H. Lyman Hooker, at the Depew home, 27 West 54th street. Only yesterday morning they had announced that the noted patient was suffering from nothing worse than a cold and that there was no cause for alarm.

Still Very Active

Mr. Depew was still active this year as the head of the New York Central's Board of Directors. He had planned to attend the Republican National convention in Kansas City on June 12. The Cleveland convention of 1924 was the first he had missed since 1888.

Mr. Depew had made plans for an informal birthday celebration on April 23. On that date he would have been 94 years old. Upon each of his birthdays in recent years Mr. Depew had received newspaper reporters at his office for interviews. Upon these occasions he would reveal his philosophy on politics, business, art, the "younger generation" and every subject upon which the eager reporters questioned him.

These interviews were liberally spiced by Mr. Depew's humor. He was one of the most entertaining after-dinner speakers in the country, and demands for his presence as toastmaster at banquets were unceasing.

Gifted as an orator, Depew became a prominent public figure early in life.

Entered Politics Early

Before he was thirty he served as a member of the state assembly of New York and as secretary of state.

In 1872, when he was 38 years of age, he ran for lieutenant governor on the Liberal-Republican ticket but was defeated. A few years before he had been confirmed United States minister to Japan but had declined the appointment.

He then became counsel for the New York Central railroad. His ability in railroad affairs won him a high place in the world of transportation. He became president of the New York Central in 1882 and held offices and directorships on many other roads. He was president of the road until 1898 and from then on was chairman of the board of directors. He was also president of the West Shore railroad.

In 1885 he declined election as United States senator. He also declined an appointment as secretary of state in the cabinet of President Benjamin Harrison. At the Republican National convention of 1888 he received 99 votes for the presidential nomination.

Two Terms As Senator

He was delegate-at-large at the Republican National conventions of 1888, 1892, 1896, 1900, 1904. He nominated Harrison for the presidency in 1888.

He served two terms as United States senator from New York state from 1899 to 1911.

Recognized as one of the leading orators of the day, he was chosen as the principal orator at the unveiling of the statute of Liberty, at the centennial celebration at the inauguration of George Washington, at the opening of the Chicago world exposition in 1893 and at many other notable occasions.

He was born in Peekskill, N. Y., on April 23, 1834. He received his A. B. degree at Yale in 1856 and was honored with a degree of Doctor of Laws by his alma mater in 1887.

His first wife, Elsie Hegeman, whom he married in 1871, died in 1898. He married Miss May Palmen in 1901.

Depew was reputed to have been many times a millionaire and a power behind the political horizon in the heyday of of his career.

HIS CREED

NEW YORK, April 5—(UP)—Chauncey Depew believed in youth, in moderation, in happiness and in his country,—and with this creed for life he expected to live to be 100 years old.

"If I get past a hundred I'll leave the rest to Providence," he once said.

Other characteristic sayings that Depew gave to the public through his annual birthday interviews included:

"The automobile has wiped out one picturesque, charming and delightful feature of American life, and that is the family horse. The old horse and buggy did more than any other one thing to promote matrimony and happy domestic life."

"So far as my religious views go I am thoroughly orthodox. I absolutely believe there is a just God. I think that God gives everybody a square deal. I believe in church going. Evolution? I believe in that. A young man starting out without God will be a failure."

DIFFERENT TAX PLAN CONSIDERED

WASHINGTON, April 5 — (INS)—Settlement of a large per cent of tax litigation by the internal revenue bureau instead of by the board of tax appeals, would be affected under a plan now being considered by the treasury.

There is danger of complete breakdown of the government's machinery for adjusting contested income tax cases if the present method of settlement is retained, officials said. The appeals board now has pending 21,000 cases involving more than $685,000,000.

RELEASED ONCE, ARRESTED AGAIN

Plummer Crago, who was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of burglarizing the Gem restaurant, Noah Myers proprietor, was released, as the body ignored the charge, but he was placed under arrest on another charge that of failure to provide, and was released on a bond of $500.

TO BE RETURNED FOR NON-SUPPORT

Charles Estep was placed under arrest at Charleston, W. Va., Wednesday on orders of Sheriff Frank Davis.

Estep was indicted on the charge of failure to provide.

He will be brought to this city as soon as extradition papers are issued by Governor Donahey, and honored by the governor of West Virginia. Estep was indicted by the April term of the grand jury.

GROCER ESCAPES IN CAR ACCIDENT

George F. Pressler, grocer, had a narrow escape from being injured Wednesday evening while returning home from his farm.

At a point on the Adelphi pike near the home of Guy Heffner, he drove his Oakland sedan into a ditch along side the road and the car turned over.

Mr. Pressler was thrown to one side of the car but was not injured.

Two broken panes of glass in the car was the only damage. The car was driven home on its own wheels after being righted by the wrecker of the Circleville Motors.

100 YEARS---A CENTURY AGO IN CIRCLEVILLE---100 YEARS

There aren't very many people in Circleville can remember when this happened, but anyway the Public Library has discovered this news from The Circleville Herald 100 years ago today, April 5, 1828:

WINTER IN APRIL!—After a winter so mild that its like is scarcely remembered by our oldest citizens — and when our gardens were blooming with young vegetation — we are met by a reverse. And while we are penning this paragraph, the snow is descending, in a manner not unbecoming the heart of winter! The ground is now covered with a greater depth of snow, than at any time during the winter; it still descends copiously, and has every appearance of continuation. It seems as if nature had lost her reckoning.

CITY PREPARES FOR OILING OF STREETS HERE

Other Legislative Matters of Civic Interest Taken Up By Council.

An ordinance instructing the Director of Public Service to advertise for bids for furnishing oil with which to oil the streets of the city of Circleville was received and read and then referred to the Safety Committee at the regular meeting of City Council on Wednesday night.

All members were present with President Goeller presiding.

Solicitor Adkins reported a meeting in the near future with officials of the State Board of Health, at which meeting several citizens are expected to attend looking toward the purification of the Scioto river

Report $54.70 Fines

Service Director Miller asked permission of council to dispose of the old fountain in front of the Court House, and this request was granted.

Mayor Hedges reported fines licenses and fees collected during the month of March in the sum of $54.70 and this report was rereived and ordered placed on file.

A claim against the city by Corbin Justice in the sum of $30.25 was presented, for repairs to automobile which he claimed to have been damaged by striking a broken lid over a manhole in South Court street. This claim was referred to the Committee on Law and Claims, together with the City Engineer and City Solicitor.

City Engineer Sweetman submitted plans, profiles and estimates for the construction of sanitary sewers on Edison avenue and Pickaway street; Clinton and Ohio streets and East Union street; the estimated cost of which is $6,500. This report of the engineer was received and placed on file.

Ask More Police Aid

A petition signed by George W. Snider and others asking for additional police protection in the south side of the city, was received and read, and the same referred to the Safety Committee.

Mr. Baker reported to Council that the County Commissioners were contemplating the paving of the alley south of the Court House, and wanted to know the amount the city would be willing to pay towards this improvement. Mr. Baker was requested to ascertain the probable amount of the cost which the city would be expected to pay, before council would obligate itself to this expenditure.

FARM BLOC IS HOPING TO GET SPEEDY ACTION

Will Attempt to Pass Farm Relief Bill Before Flood Legislation.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 5 — The senate farm bloc buckled down today to a drive for enactment of the compromise McNary-Haugen farm relief bill within the next week.

The bloc leaders were greatly encouraged by the action of corn belt farmers in unanimously endorsing the new bill at their Des Moines conference. The corn belt men, representing twenty-three groups of farm organizations, "cordially approve" the bill.

Would Precede Flood Bill

A movement meanwhile was started in the house to get the farm measure considered in the lower branch of congress before action is taken on the flood control bill. The farm bloc spokesmen, if defeated in this effort, will try to have their measure acted upon after flood control.

The new bill, after being sidetracked in the senate for two days for an appropriation bill, will be debated the rest of this week, its sponsors were hopeful of getting a final vote by next Tuesday or Wednesday. This would enable the house to pass upon it before the end of April, allowing a full month for presidential action and an effort to reenact it over a veto if it met White House disapproval.

The movement for immediate

SINCLAIR PART IN OIL "GAME" COST HIM MUCH

Has Been Divorced From Money That Would Make Several Wealthy.

By GEORGE E. DURNO
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 5—What price prosecution?

A much hampered inquiry today developed that Harry F. Sinclair's part in the oil scandals of the Harding administration has cost him some exceedingly important money during the past five years.

Since the winter of 1923, when the Senate first thrust an inquisitive nose into the ways and means by which he acquired a lease on the Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve, up to the present moment when he is about to stand trial for criminal conspiracy against the government in connection therewith, Sinclair has been divorced from a steady stream of money that should make a number of readers independently wealthy for life.

The oil man is convinced he is being "persecuted." He thinks that federal agents have been constantly on his trail, watching his every movement since 1923. Well he might if his friends are to be believed. They estimate that five years ago his fortune was in excess of a hundred million dollars—some placed it as high as $120,000,000.

Huge Sums

Today, the estimate ranges from

Every day in the Herald and Union Herald-Watchman campaign has been an opportunity to you. Every day until the end of the race is still a greater opportunity. You do not have to make a field for a new and untried article. You are not under the disadvantage of asking anyone to "try" it—there are a few people with whom you come in contact who have not seen these newspapers and appreciated their superiority as daily and weekly newspapers. There is no reason why you should not be able to secure a hearing from anyone you approach on the proposition. Alright, then, you have the chance to tell them, your friends, about the paper.

CANDIDATES: It is your work during the last week of this campaign to make regular subscribers

FORMER RESIDENT CRITICALLY ILL

The condition of Mrs. Harry Hische of Ringgold, Ga., has become alarmingly worse. Although she was supposedly recovering from a recent operation performed at the Surgeons' and Physicians' hospital in Chattanooga, Tenn., gangrene is now thought to have set in, and her condition is very critical.

Her sister, Mrs. M. J. Morris, of North Court street, has been with her.

FALSE FIRE ALARM

Fire alarm, 21, struck at 1:55 p. m., today, was a false alarm. The wind blowing a loose wire over the fire alarm wire, caused the trouble.

EX-SENATOR AND RAILROAD FIGURE DIES OF PNEUMONIA AT AGE OF 93 IN NEW YORK HOME

NEW YORK, April 5—(INS)—Chauncey Mitchell Depew, chairman of the board of directors of the New York Central railroad, former United States Senator and long a prominent figure in the Republican party, died of bronchial pneumonia at his home here shortly before 4:30 o'clock this morning. He was 93 years old.

Mr. Depew suffered a slight chill upon his return from St. Petersburg, Fla., last week, and was confined to his home with a cold. Late yesterday his physician announced that his condition had taken a turn for the worse, but stated that his general condition was not alarming.

Despite the reassurances of the doctors, Mr. Depew's entire family was called to the home. The relatives at the bedside were Mrs. Depew; a son, Chauncey M. Depew, Jr.; a niece, Miss Anne Depew Paulding; and a nephew, Chauncey Depew Steele, of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y.

Although bronchial pneumonia is considered a serious illness for a man of Mr. Depew's age, physicians in attendance were confident almost until the end that he would recover, and the suddenness of his death came as something of a shock. He partook of some light nourishment yesterday and last night his temperature dropped from 104 to 102, according to a bulletin issued by his physicians.

Formal announcement of Mr. Depew's death was made by his physicians, Dr. Samuel W. Lamtert and Dr. H. Lyman Hooker, at the Depew home, 27 West 54th street. Only yesterday morning they had announced that th 'r noted patient was suffering fron. nothing worse than a cold and that there was no cause for alarm.

Still Very Active

Mr. Depew was still active this year as the head of the New York Central's Board of Directors. He had planned to attend the Republican National convention in Kansas City on June 12. The Cleveland convention of 1924 was the first he had missed since 1888.

Mr. Depew had made plans for an informal birthday celebration on April 23. On that date he would have been 94 years old. Upon each of his birthdays in recent years Mr. Depew had received newspaper reporters at his office for interviews. Upon these occasions he would reveal his philosophy on politics, business, art, the "younger generation" and every subject upon which the eager reporters questioned him.

These interviews were liberally spiced by Mr. Depew's humor. He was one of the most entertaining after-dinner speakers in the country, and demands for his presence as toastmaster at banquets were unceasing.

Gifted as an orator, Depew became a prominent public figure early in life.

Entered Politics Early

Before he was thirty he served as a member of the state assembly of New York and as secretary of state.

In 1872, when he was 38 years of age, he ran for lieutenant governor on the Liberal-Republican ticket but was defeated. A few years before he had been confirmed United States minister to Japan but had declined the appointment.

He then became counsel for the New York Central railroad. His ability in railroad affairs won him a high place in the world of transportation. He became president of the New York Central in 1882 and held offices and directorships on many other roads. He was president of the road until 1898 and from then on was chairman of the board of directors. He was also president of the West Shore railroad.

In 1885 he declined election as United States senator. He also declined an appointment as secretary of state in the cabinet of President Benjamin Harrison. At the Republican National convention of 1888 he received 99 votes for the presidential nomination.

Two Terms As Senator

He was delegate-at-large at the Republican National conventions of 1888, 1892, 1896, 1900, 1904. He nominated Harrison for the presidency in 1888.

He served two terms as United States senator from New York state from 1899 to 1911.

Recognized as one of the leading orators of the day, he was chosen as the principal orator at the unveiling of the statute of Liberty, at the centennial celebration at the inauguration of George Washington, at the opening of the Chicago world exposition in 1893 and at many other notable occasions.

He was born in Peekskill, N. Y., on April 23, 1834. He received his A. B. degree at Yale in 1856 and was honored with a degree of Doctor of Laws by his alma mater in 1887.

His first wife, Elsie Hegeman, whom he married in 1871, died in 1893. He married Miss May Palmen in 1901.

Depew was reputed to have been many times a millionaire and a power behind the political horizon in the heyday of of his career.

HIS CREED

NEW YORK, April 5—(UP)—Chauncey Depew believed in youth, in moderation, in happiness and in his country—and with this creed for life he expected to live to be 100 years old.

"If I get past a hundred I'll leave the rest to Providence," he once said.

Other characteristic sayings that Depew gave to the public through his annual birthday interviews included:

"The automobile has wiped out one picturesque, charming and delightful feature of American life, and that is the family horse. The family horse and buggy did more than any other one thing to promote matrimony and happy domestic life."

"So far as my religious views go I am thoroughly orthodox. I absolutely believe there is a just God. I think that God gives everybody a square deal. I believe in church going. Evolution? I believe in that. A young man starting out without God will be a failure."

DIFFERENT TAX PLAN CONSIDERED

WASHINGTON, April 5 — (INS)—Settlement of a large per cent of tax litigation by the internal revenue bureau instead of by the board of tax appeals, would be affected under a plan now being considered by the treasury.

There is danger of complete breakdown of the government's machinery for adjusting contested income tax cases if the present method of settlement is retained, officials said. The appeals board now has pending 21,000 cases involving more than $685,000,000.

RELEASED ONCE, ARRESTED AGAIN

Plummer Crago, who was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of burglarizing the Gem restaurant, Noah Myers proprietor, was released, as the body ignored the charge, but he was placed under arrest on another charge that of failure to provide, and was released on a bond of $500.

TO BE RETURNED FOR NON-SUPPORT

Charles Estep was placed under arrest at Charleston, W. Va., Wednesday on orders of Sheriff Frank Davis.

Estep was indicted on the charge of failure to provide.

He will be brought to this city as soon as extradition papers are issued by Governor Donahey, and honored by the governor of West Virginia. Estep was indicted by the April term of the grand jury

GROCER ESCAPES IN CAR ACCIDENT

George F. Pressler, grocer, had a narrow escape from being injured Wednesday evening while returning home from his farm.

At a point on the Adelphi pike near the home of Guy Heffner, he drove his Oakland sedan into a ditch along side the road and the car turned over.

Mr. Pressler was thrown to one side of the car but was not injured.

Two broken panes of glass in the car was the only damage. The car was driven home on its own wheels after being righted by the wrecker of the Circleville Motors

100 YEARS---A CENTURY AGO IN CIRCLEVILLE---100 YEARS

There aren't very many people in Circleville can remember when this happened, but anyway the Public Library has discovered this news from The Circleville Herald 100 years ago today, April 5, 1828:

WINTER IN APRIL!—After a winter so mild that its like is scarcely remembered by our oldest citizens — and when our gardens were blooming with young vegetation — we are met by a reverse. And while we are penning this paragraph, the snow is descending, in a manner not unbecoming the heart of winter! The ground is now covered with a greater depth of snow, than at any time during the winter; it still descends copiously, and has every appearance of continuation. It seems as if nature had lost her reckoning.

LAST BONUS VOTE OFFER IN EFFECT TODAY

out of occasional readers. Show them the great saving in hard money. It may take a bit of talking but you will be well repaid for your energy.

Work with every ounce of energy and brain tissue you possess for the next ten days. The results depend on work—nothing but hard work, well planned, ambitious, steadfast work. There is an element of luck connected with the campaign. The rewards are fixed in value and the rules are such as to safeguard your hardest efforts. Remember, the prizes and that those not winning them will be paid ten per cent on all they turn in providing they comply with the rules. Nothing could be more fair, and it simply remains for the "live candidates," those who really have the ambition to win, to get busy and let absolutely nothing stop them.

The Manner of Closing

In order that no misunderstanding about closing will result, it is suggested that candidates read very carefully the manner of winding up this campaign, then follow the directions carefully.

All candidates will be busy the last day, April 14, that's sure. However, if they see fit they may report their subscriptions at any time during the day or evening before 7 o'clock. At 7 O'CLOCK P. M. a halt will be called and the soliciting of subscriptions will STOP. Every candidate must be in the Circleville Publishing Company's office at that hour with his or her report blanks made out completely and cash to balance. At that time we will make our final settlement. Every candidate will be given ONE CHANCE and ONE ONLY to turn in subscriptions AFTER 7 O'CLOCK. After you have reported that ONE time after 7 o'clock you will NOT be allowed to return to the reporting room again. You will have made your final settlement, deposited your reserve votes in a ballot box and will be finished. After each candidate has reported that ONE time, the judges will be handed the votes and begin the count.

your advantage to bring in ALL your subscriptions and RESERVE votes at THAT HOUR. You will not be able to get back the second time. This assures everyone a fair and square deal. No one will be allowed to come in the second time and cover any possible deficiency with a cash deposit. Votes will NOT be sold in this campaign. Be sure to bring your reserve votes with you. This is important, for the votes you have been given every week are the identical ballots that the judges will count; so don't leave them at home. Be here! And be here on time!

Do you want a high grade machine? Your chance to win one absolutely free is before you. You can win one of the big prizes with a little effort if you arrange your work systematically. You must have the bonus votes offered in order to win. This is the only way to win. Pick out one of the high figures in the last vote offer advertised below and work as you have never worked before. Don't let up a single day or hour. Get someone to take care of your regular duties and devote every spare moment to the gathering of subscriptions. It is your duty to yourself, and if you finish the campaign like this you will have the satisfaction of knowing you did your level best, and satisfied with the result.

Last Offer of Extra Votes

The offer following is smaller than at any previous time, yet simply large enough to enable any live, hustling candidate to win if he or she goes after the bonus ballots hard enough. This offer lasts until the last day, April 14, at 7 o'clock. Go in and win!

$20 in subscriptions	will mean	10,000 extra votes.
$40 in subscriptions	will mean	35,000 extra votes.
$60 in subscriptions	will mean	65,000 extra votes.
$80 in subscriptions	will mean	100,000 extra votes.
$100 in subscriptions	will mean	150,000 extra votes.
$125 in subscriptions	will mean	225,000 extra votes.
$150 in subscriptions	will mean	300,000 extra votes.
$175 in subscriptions	will mean	375,000 extra votes.
$200 in subscriptions	will mean	425,000 extra votes.
$225 in subscriptions	will mean	500,000 extra votes.
$250 in subscriptions	will mean	575,000 extra votes.
$275 in subscriptions	will mean	650,000 extra votes.
$300 in subscriptions	will mean	750,000 extra votes.

REMEMBER, this offer is for either new or old subscriptions and must be turned in accordingly. This offer lasts until the last day of the campaign, April 14. Don't fail to land the big bonus.

SPECIAL PROPOSITION FOR FOURTEEN DAYS ONLY

Beginning with Friday, March 30, and lasting until Thursday, April 12, (just fourteen days), the candidate will be allowed to take NEW subscriptions only to the Union-Herald and Watchman at the rate of seven months for $1.00; the Daily Herald, by mail, four months for $1.00 also the Daily Herald, by carrier, ten weeks for $1.00; and we will allow 1,000 votes for every subscription of that class. For a string of twenty-five $1.00 subscriptions DOUBLE votes will be given; in other words, if you get twenty-five NEW subscriptions for $1.00 each, 2,000 VOTES will be allowed for each subscription. A string of FIFTY subscriptions for for $1.00 each would mean a total of 100,000 regular votes also a bonus ballot calling for 50,000 extra votes will be given. This is a mighty attractive proposition for both candidate and subscriber and it is a safe bet that EVERY candidate will GET BUSY at once. This offer will not interfere with the regular vote offer allowed for longer term subscriptions, both new and old, given each week. Get busy on both offers.

Work with every ounce of energy and brain tissue you possess for the next ten days. The results depend on work—nothing but hard work, well planned, ambitious, steadfast work. There is an element of luck connected with the campaign. The rewards are fixed in value and the rules are such as to safeguard your hardest efforts. Remember the prizes and that those not winning them will be paid ten per cent on all they turn in providing they comply with the rules. Nothing could be more fair, and it simply remains for the "live candidates," those who really have the ambition to win, to get busy and let absolutely nothing stop them.

The Manner of Closing

In order that no misunderstanding about closing will result, it is suggested that candidates read very carefully the manner of winding up this campaign, then follow the directions carefully.

All candidates will be busy the last day, April 14, that's sure. However, if they see fit they may report their subscriptions at any time during the day or evening before 7 o'clock. At 7 O'CLOCK P. M. a halt will be called and the soliciting of subscriptions will STOP. Every candidate must be in the Circleville Publishing Company's office at that hour with his or her report blanks made out completely and cash to balance. At that time we will make our final settlement. Every candidate will be given ONE CHANCE and ONE ONLY to turn in subscriptions AFTER 7 O'CLOCK. After you have reported that ONE time after 7 o'clock you will NOT be allowed to return to the reporting room again. You will have made your final settlement, deposited your reserve votes in a ballot box and will be finished. After each candidate has reported that ONE time, the judges will be handed the votes and begin the count.

your advantage to bring in ALL your subscriptions and RESERVE votes at THAT HOUR. You will not be able to get back the second time. This assures everyone a fair and square deal. No one will be allowed to come in the second time and cover any possible deficiency with a cash deposit. Votes will NOT be sold in this campaign. Be sure to bring your reserve votes with you. This is important, for the votes you have been given every week are the identical ballots that the judges will count; so don't leave them at home. Be here! And be here on time!

Do you want a high grade machine? Your chance to win one absolutely free is before you. You can win one of the big prizes with a little effort if you arrange your work systematically. You must have the bonus votes offered in order to win. This is the only way to win. Pick out one of the high figures in the last vote offer advertised below and work as you have never worked before. Don't let up a single day or hour. Get someone to take care of your regular duties and devote every spare moment to the gathering of subscriptions. It is your duty to yourself, and if you finish the campaign like this you will have the satisfaction of knowing you did your level best, and satisfied with the result.

Last Offer of Extra Votes

The offer following is smaller than at any previous time, yet amply large enough to enable any live, hustling candidate to win if he or she goes after the bonus ballots hard enough. This offer lasts until the last day, April 14, at 7 o'clock. Go in and win!

$20 in subscriptions will mean 10,000 extra votes.
$40 in subscriptions will mean 35,000 extra votes.
$60 in subscriptions will mean 65,000 extra votes.
$80 in subscriptions will mean 100,000 extra votes.
$100 in subscriptions will mean 150,000 extra votes.
$125 in subscriptions will mean 225,000 extra votes.
$150 in subscriptions will mean 300,000 extra votes.
$175 in subscriptions will mean 375,000 extra votes.
$200 in subscriptions will mean 425,000 extra votes.
$225 in subscriptions will mean 500,000 extra votes.
$250 in subscriptions will mean 575,000 extra votes.
$275 in subscriptions will mean 650,000 extra votes.
$300 in subscriptions will mean 750,000 extra votes.

REMEMBER, this offer is for either new or old subscriptions and must be turned in accordingly. This offer lasts until the last day of the campaign, April 14. Don't fail to land the big bonus.

SPECIAL PROPOSITION FOR FOURTEEN DAYS ONLY

Beginning with Friday, March 30, and lasting until Thursday, April 12, (just fourteen days), the candidate will be allowed to take NEW subscriptions only to the Union-Herald and Watchman at the rate of seven months for $1.00; the Daily Herald, by mail, four months for $1.00 also the Daily Herald, by carrier, ten weeks for $1.00; and we will allow 1,000 votes for every subscription of that class. For a string of twenty-five $1.00 subscriptions DOUBLE votes will be given; in other words, if you get twenty-five NEW subscriptions for $1.00 each, 2,000 VOTES will be allowed for each subscription. A string of FIFTY subscriptions for for $1.00 each would mean a total of 100,000 regular votes also a bonus ballot calling for 50,000 extra votes will be given. This is a mighty attractive proposition for both candidate and subscriber and it is a safe bet that EVERY candidate will GET BUSY at once. This offer will not interfere with the regular vote offer allowed for longer term subscriptions, both new and old, given each week. Get busy on both offers.

consideration of the bill by the house gained momentum after Rep. Haugen (R) of Iowa, filed a formal report from the house agricultural committee, recommending its enactment. Haugen declared the farmers of the nation desired the McNary-Haugen bill and were willing to pay for farm relief through the equalization fee.

Equalization Fee

"Through the operation of the equalization fee," said Haugen "which requires every unit of a commodity to bear its share of the cost of stabilization and protection, the effect of the plan is to provide 100 per cent cooperation of all producers in financing transactions necessary to the control and disposition of surplus crops. It takes 100 per cent cooperation to deal effectively with the surplus and it is impossible to get such complete cooperation otherwise than through government action."

Haugen declared nine of the ten otherwise than through govern- Coolidge against the bill of a year ago, were eliminated in the new compromise measure. The one feature retained — that of the equalization fee, he explained, has been modified to eliminate much of the president's opposition. He predicted overwhelming approval of the bill by the house.

a maximum of $75,000,000 to a minimum of $50,000,000 The balance, it is claimed, has gone in an effort to beat the charge that he bribed former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall to give him a fraudulent lease on Teapot Dome, and in business reverses incident thereto.

Figures of this nature are almost impossible of verification, but it is known that Sinclair lost quite a few millions alone when the Supreme Court voided his lease on the oil reserve, not only taking from him the handsome profits, but also a thousand-mile pipeline from Wyoming to the Pacific Coast and all of the storage tanks at the delivery end

Everyone concerned is reluctant to discuss dollars and cents in connection with Sinclair's financial outlay as a result of his tribulations, but enough was gleaned to indicate tremendous expenditures.

Costly Representation

During the constant court litigations arising from the oil scandal, the oil man has been represented by such men as Martin W. Littleton, of New York, who made his mark in the Thaw-White murder case; George Hoover, of Washington, who just won a million-dollar will case; Daniel Thew Wright, who, as Justice of the D C. Supreme Court, presided over the famous stove case that nearly resulted in the jailing of the late Sam Gompers and other American Federation of Labor Leaders; Reginald Ragland and T. Stanford, experts on oil and land laws, and half a dozen others. All of these are reputed to have received small fortunes in fees from their client.

HONOR FIREMEN

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O. April 5 — (UP) — A fire stricken village, suffering from the $100.000 blaze of Tuesday night, which threatened the county courthouse, will pause Friday in its reconstruction work, to pay homage to the two heroic fire-fighters, Cecil Lillie, 18, and Paul Trauten, 24, who gave their lives Tuesday. Firemen from Brookside will use their trucks as a hearse to convey the bodies.

Religion of Old Egypt

The ancient religious belief of the Egyptians was both monotheistic and polytheistic There was one supreme god, Ra, represented by the sun who had for his wife, Mout, the mother of all nature Osiris, who was the chief patron of Egyptian deity, was supposed to be the son of Seb, the earth, and Nut, the sky. There were many other lesser gods, but Ra was supreme

Treasure Hunt Planned for Buried Outlaw Loot in Arizona

TOMBSTONE, Ariz.—Ho, for buried treasure! A treasure hunt for the rich pillage of the robberies of Curly Bill's outlaw band in Mexico and the Southwest half a century ago, is, it is said, being secretly organized here.

A fortune of $3,000,000, including a cigar box full of diamonds, stacks of Mexican gold dollars and bars of bullion taken from smuggler trains, it is said, waits for the person that finds it Interest in the treasure hunt has been aroused by publication of Walter Noble Burns' book "Tombstone," the story of this frontier town in the roaring '80's when the Earp brothers, Doc Holliday and the Clantons matched their six shooters for supremacy

A dying outlaw, according to the account in Mr. Burns' book, who helped bury the treasure, wrote out "in detail the directions for finding it. Davis Mountain is the key to the secret of the hidden riches.

The grave of an outlaw at Silver Spring in a canyon a mile west of Davis Mountain, the directions say, is the first landmark Not far from the grave is a stone three feet high, carved with two crosses. Twenty paces east of this stone is supposed to be the wreckage of a burned wagon which, says Mr. Burns, marks the spot where the treasure is buried.

But the dying outlaw's directions do not disclose the whereabouts of Davis Mountain. The peak is not on any map and none of the old-timers recall a mountain of that name But this does not discourage the treasure hunters Out across the desert lies the peak of purple mystery. If they locate it, a fortune of $3,000,000 is theirs

BAUGHMAN RITES HELD WEDNESDAY

The funeral of Joseph Baughman was held at his brother's home on South Scioto street Wednesday afternoon. Rev Benjamin DeCamp, of St. Philip's Episcopal church officiating.

Those from out of town attending the funeral were; Mr. and Mrs C K. Proctor, Will Proctor, of Maysville, Kentucky; Mr and Mrs Harry Baughman, Mrs Carrie Seavers, Mrs Elizabeth Keffler and children, Mr and Mrs. Jack Needham, of Columbus; Mr and Mrs William Beecham, of Logan, and Mr and Mrs. Allen Rogers and daughter, Jennie, of Akron

A squad from the Spanish-American war veterans camp, Columbus, attended the funeral and the chaplain held ritual services at the grave. A detachment of U. S soldiers from Ft Hayes, fired three volleys across the grave of the sleeping soldier, and taps were sounded by the bugler.

JEROME SMITH, JR., DIES IN COLUMBUS

Jerome Smith Jr., son of Jerome Smith, former resident of this city died at his home in Columbus Wednesday morning at 5 o clock.

The funeral will take place in Columbus at 10 00 a. m, Friday and the remains will be brought here for burial in Forest cemetery on the family lot at 12-30 o'clock.

The deceased was a half brother of Mrs. John L Seall of this city.

OBITUARIES

Timothy P. Mogan Jr, the infant son of T P and Marie Mogan, was born in Circleville, Ohio, Sept. 22, 1926, and his sojourn here was of short duration, as the Grim Reaper claimed him as one of His jewels on March 29, 1928, just at the time his cheerful disposition and baby prattle made his presence in the home as welcome as a bright sun beam

Little Timmie's sickness was of short duration, and almost before his grief sticken parents realized the seriousness of his condition his little spirit had taken its flight for that better home

He leaves to mourn his untimely death besides his parents, one full and one half sister and two half brothers

His little play things have been placed away, but they, as well as his memory will be treasured by the sorrowing family during the coming months of sadness, but we know that Time, as the great healer of all wounds will be merciful to those who mourn

The funeral services were conducted at the home of his parents by Rev McElfresh, and burial was made in Forest cemetery

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our thanks to friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during our sadness

NEW TYPE LIGHT SIX DUE SHORTLY

DETROIT, Mich, April 5 — A new type, low priced six-cylinder motor car, as essential in its new features as certain of the recent much discussed fours, is likely to be announced within the next few weeks, according to a well defined rumor current in automotive circles here.

The price reductions and announcements in the light four cylinder field, which followed each other in rapid succession early in the year, have so far left the light six field unaffected, but now it seems certain that there will be equally as sensational developments in this latter group of motor cars

During the past few weeks a new car obviously equipped with a six cylinder power plant, but bearing no ensignia which would establish the identity of the manufacturer, has been seen on the highways of Michigan where speed laws are lifted to the careful drivers.

This car differs in many respects to any six now on the market and according to drivers who have followed it over the road reveals a striking performance ability in speed, power and smoothness. It is a low car, with compact yet with ample body dimensions and with striking accerleration.

PERSONAL

Old Map of Holland Now In Yale Library

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April5 — (INS) —John Senex, of London, drew a map of the Netherlands and dedicated it to Elihu Yale. That was in 1709. A copy of that map recently came to light in Yale university, is now hailed as "the oldest association item connected with a Yale man" It was nine years after the date on the map that Elihu Yale gave the colonists in Connecticut "Books, the Portrait and the Arms of King George, and Two Hundred Pounds Sterling worth of English goods" that caused the masters of the "Collegiate School in New Haven" to name their school Yale College

When the Yale Library, whose Elihu Yale map was picked up in Stamford, Conn., announced the finding, George E. Thompson, of New Haven, Yale 1895, produced four more copies which he discovered in London, and the map is now expected to have a great vogue.

consideration of the bill by the house gained momentum after Rep. Haugen (R) of Iowa, filed a formal report from the house agricultural committee, recommending its enactment. Haugen declared the farmers of the nation desired the McNary-Haugen bill and were willing to pay for farm relief through the equalization fee.

Equalization Fee

"Through the operation of the equalization fee," said Haugen, "which requires every unit of a commodity to bear its share of the cost of stabilization and protection, the effect of the plan is to provide 100 per cent cooperation of all producers in financing transactions necessary to the control and disposition of surplus crops. It takes 100 per cent cooperation to deal effectively with the surplus and it is impossible to get such complete cooperation otherwise than through government action."

Haugen declared nine of the ten otherwise than through govern- Coolidge against the bill of a year ago, were eliminated in the new compromise measure. The one feature retained — that of the equalization fee, he explained, has been modified to eliminate much of the president's opposition. He predicted overwhelming approval of the bill by the house.

a maximum of $75,000,000 to a minimum of $50,000,000. The balance, it is claimed, has gone in an effort to beat the charge that he bribed former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall to give him a fraudulent lease on Teapot Dome, and in business reverses incident thereto.

Figures of this nature are almost impossible of verification, but it is known that Sinclair lost quite a few millions alone when the Supreme Court voided his lease on the oil reserve, not only taking from him the handsome profits, but also a thousand-mile pipeline from Wyoming to the Pacific Coast and all of the storage tanks at the delivery end.

Everyone concerned is reluctant to discuss dollars and cents in connection with Sinclair's financial outlay as a result of his tribulations, but enough was gleaned to indicate tremendous expenditures.

Costly Representation

During the constant court litigations arising from the oil scandal, the oil man has been represented by such men as Martin W. Littleton, of New York, who made his mark in the Thaw-White murder case; George Hoover, of Washington, who just won a million-dollar will case; Daniel Thew Wright, who, as Justice of the D. C. Supreme Court, presided over the famous stove case that nearly resulted in the jailing of the late Sam Gompers and other American Federation of Labor Leaders; Reginald Ragland and T. Stanford, experts on oil and land laws, and half a dozen others. All of these are reputed to have received small fortunes in fees from their client.

Treasure Hunt Planned for Buried Outlaw Loot in Arizona

TOMBSTONE, Ariz.—Ho, for buried treasure! A treasure hunt for the rich pillage of the robberies of Curly Bill's outlaw band in Mexico and the Southwest half a century ago, is, it is said, being secretly organized here.

A fortune of $3,000,000, including a cigar box full of diamonds, stacks of Mexican gold dollars and bars of bullion taken from smuggler trains, it is said, waits for the person that finds it. Interest in the treasure hunt has been aroused by publication of Walter Noble Burns' book "Tombstone," the story of this frontier town in the roaring '80's when the Earp brothers, Doc Holliday and the Clantons matched their six shooters for supremacy.

A dying outlaw, according to the account in Mr. Burns' book, who helped bury the treasure, wrote out "n detail the directions for finding it. Davis Mountain is the key to the secret of the hidden riches.

The grave of an outlaw at Silver Spring in a canyon a mile west of Davis Mountain, the directions say, is the first landmark. Not far from the grave is a stone three feet high, carved with two crosses. Twenty paces east of this stone is supposed to be the wreckage of a burned wagon which, says Mr. Burns, marks the spot where the treasure is buried.

But the dying outlaw's directions do not disclose the whereabouts of Davis Mountain. The peak is not on any map and none of the old-timers recall a mountain of that name. But this does not discourage the treasure hunters. Out across the desert lies the peak of purple mystery. If they locate it, a fortune of $3,000,000 is theirs

The funeral of Joseph Baughman was held at his brother's home on South Scioto street Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Benjamin DeCamp, of St. Philip's Episcopal church officiating.

Those from out of town attending the funeral were; Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Proctor, Will Proctor, of Maysville, Kentucky; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baughman, Mrs. Carrie Seavers, Mrs. Elizabeth Keffler and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Needham, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. William Beecham, of Logan, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Rogers and daughter, Jennie, of Akron.

A squad from the Spanish-American war veterans camp, Columbus, attended the funeral and the chaplain held ritual services at the grave. A detachment of U. S. soldiers from Ft. Hayes, fired three volleys across the grave of the sleeping soldier, and taps were sounded by the bugler.

JEROME SMITH, JR., DIES IN COLUMBUS

Jerome Smith Jr., son of Jerome Smith, former resident of this city died at his home in Columbus Wednesday morning at 5 o'clock.

The funeral will take place in Columbus at 10:00 a. m., Friday and the remains will be brought here for burial in Forest cemetery on the family lot at 12:30 o'clock.

The deceased was a half brother of Mrs. John L. Seall, of this city.

OBITUARIES

Timothy P. Mogan Jr., the infant son of T. P. and Marie Mogan, was born in Circleville, Ohio, Sept. 22, 1926, and his sojourn here was of short duration, as the Grim Reaper claimed him as one of His jewels on March 29, 1928, just at the time his cheerful disposition and baby prattle made his presence in the home as welcome as a bright sun beam.

Little Timmie's sickness was of short duration, and almost before his grief sticken parents realized the seriousness of his condition his little spirit had taken its flight for that better home.

He leaves to mourn his untimely death besides his parents, one full and one half sister and two half brothers.

His little play things have been placed away, but they, as well as his memory will be treasured by the sorrowing family during the coming months of sadness, but we know that Time, as the great healer of all wounds will be merciful to those who mourn.

The funeral services were conducted at the home of his parents by Rev. McElfresh, and burial was made in Forest cemetery.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our thanks to friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during our sadness.

NEW TYPE LIGHT SIX DUE SHORTLY

DETROIT, Mich., April 5 — A new type, low priced six-cylinder motor car, as essential in its new features as certain of the recent much discussed fours, is likely to be announced within the next few weeks, according to a well defined rumor current in automotive circles here.

The price reductions and announcements in the light four cylinder field, which followed each other in rapid succession early in the year, have so far left the light six field unaffected, but now it seems certain that there will be equally as sensational developments in this latter group of motor cars.

During the past few weeks a new car obviously equipped with a six cylinder power plant, but bearing no ensignia which would establish the idenity of the manufacturer, has been seen on the highways of Michigan where speed laws are lifted to the careful drivers.

This car differs in many respects to any six now on the market and according to drivers who have followed it over the road reveals a striking performance ability in speed, power and smoothness. It is a low car, with compact yet with ample body dimensions and with striking accerleration.

SECURES DIVORCE

Mrs. Mary E. Lanman has secured a divorce from Howard E. Lanman on the charge of failure to provide and abandonment. She was restored to her maiden name that of Mary E. Pontious. The decree was granted by Judge Curtain in Common pleas court. Charles H. May represents the plaintiff.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Goldie Myers has filed a suit for divorce from George T. Myers in the court of common pleas. The parties were married September 28, 1916. In her petition she charges her husband with extreme cruelty, with breaking up dishes, when he lost his temper, over which apparently he has no control, and calling her vile names, accusing her of adultery, and even denying the paternity of her two older children.

The couple have three daughters. She asks the court for temporary alimony during the pendency of the suit, and for support and custody of her children. Abernethy and Simkins represent the plaintiff.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

Ale Thompson, Jr., 25, farmer, Pickaway township, and Alice Hutchinson, 23, Walnut township.

HESTER WILL PROBATED

The will of Mrs. Sarah Ann Hester of Columbus has been probated. The deceased was the wife of James Hester, a former resident of this city, and related to the Washburn family of East Union street.

The testator, who left an estate of $12,000, of which $1,200 is personal, made the following devises: Holy Rosary Catholic church, and St. Vincent's Asylum, of Columbus, $500, each.

A niece and nephew, Marie R. Diltz and Condon, are each given $ a Ross, Eva Ross, Ellen Carl Ross and John Condon, nieces and nephews, are given $500 each. A like amount is given to Rev. Francis W. Howard, bishop of the Covington Catholic diocese, who is also named residuary legatee under the will. A friend Mrs. Bernard Dunn, is given $200; Catherine Stark $500; Bridget Sullivan, $250, and Rose Seiphart, $250. Anna Heckart is given the household furniture.

BOOST LAW LIBRARY

Pickaway County Bar Association met in the Common Pleas Court Room Wednesday with President, Abernethy, presiding. On motion of Attorney Barton Walter, an extensive and much needed addition was voted for the County Law Library. In addition to the above named addition, it was voted by members present to bring the present Attorney General's reports to date by subscriptions paid by the association from the Library fund.

Scotch Flemings

In Newhaven, a little fishing community on the shore of the Firth of Forth, Scotland, there is a colony of fisherfolk who are the descendants of Flemish settlers of the Fifteenth century. The settlers, refugees from the Thirty Years' war waged by Charles V in Flanders, carried with them their native customs and manner of dress, which are still in evidence, despite the long sojourn among the Scotch

PERSONAL

Old Map of Holland Now In Yale Library

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April5 — (INS) —John Senex , of London, drew a map of the Netherlands and dedicated it to Elihu Yale. That was in 1709. A copy of that map, recently came to light in Yale university, is now hailed as "the oldest association item connected with a Yale man." It was nine years after the date on the map that Elihu Yale gave the colonists in Connecticut "Books, the Portrait and the Arms of King George, and Two Hundred Pounds Sterling worth of English goods" that caused the masters of the "Collegiate School in New Haven" to name their school Yale College.

When the Yale Library, whose Elihu Yale map was picked up in Stamford, Conn., announced the finding, George E. Thompson, of New Haven, Yale 1895, produced four more copies which he discovered in London, and the map is now expected to have a great vogue.

HONOR FIREMEN

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., April 5 — (UP) — A fire stricken village, suffering from the $100,000 blaze of Tuesday night, which threatened the county courthouse, will pause Friday in its reconstruction work, to pay homage to the two heroic fire-fighters, Cecil Lillie, 18, and Paul Trauten, 24, who gave their lives Tuesday. Firemen from Brookside will use their trucks as a hearse to convey the bodies.

Religion of Old Egypt

The ancient religious belief of the Egyptians was both monotheistic and polytheistic. There was one supreme god, Ra, represented by the sun, who had for his wife, Mout, the mother of all nature. Osiris, who was the chief national Egyptian deity, was supposed to be the son of Seb, the earth, and Nut, the sky. There were many other lesser gods, but Ra was supreme.

BIBLE THOUGHT

GLORY OR SHAME—The wise shall inherit glory: but shame shall be the promotion of fools.—Prov. 3:33.

PRAYER—Lord, we would turn at Thy reproof and seek Thy counsel.

IMMORTALITY

THE Christian year finds its climax on Easter day, when it proclaims the one culminating truth of immortality. It asserts this not merely in confident trust in the words of Jesus, but in reliance on principles of eternal justice and right.

We know not whence we come nor where we go, nor are we directly told what our mission is here. But a voice within tells us that certain principles are right and vital, and that we must adhere to them.

We feel instinctively that the world must be founded on principles of justice, that, in the words of Matthew Arnold, there is "something not ourselves which makes for righteousness." We can not conceive of a world in which evil purposes were the dominating motives, for evil is self destructive, and such a world could not continue to exist.

There is some force working in us which seeks to establish righteousness. The power that rules this universe must be identical with that force.

No human father would want to bring children into the world to force them to suffer. It is inconceivable that the power that we call God is less loving than a human father. The creator is greater than the creature, and he must also be infinitely better.

Love must be at the bottom of the universe. A loving power would not bring us into the world merely to give us a fleeting glimpse of joy and then cruelly snatch it from us. That power must have some further opportunity to give us, to make up for the losses and wrongs of this life. So we believe and trust, and in that spirit we enter the temple of God on Easter day and worship the memory of Jesus, the expression of God's thought and purpose. But to expect to gain the immortal life, we must earn it by right living.

INTO A MAD MARKET

THE frenzied activities on the stock exchange recently, with tales of fabulous gains made by fortunate speculators, have led thousands of citizens who ordinarily leave the market strictly alone to "take a plunge" in the hope of making sudden gains.

This is unfortunate. The stock market is a tricky place even for the expert. It is no place at all for the man of small means. The most foolish thing you can do is risk a few hundred dollars that represent years of saving.

Of course, you may double your money. But, on the other hand, you may lose it all over night. If you have savings, leave them in the bank where they belong.

LEARNING TO DRIVE

AN Ohio woman the other day, set out to learn how to drive a new auto her brother had just bought her. She made her attempt on a crowded street, but since she cruised along at 10 miles an hour everything seemed safe enough.

Presently, however, she got in front of a street car. The motorman clanged his bell; in a hurried effort to get out of the way, the woman accidently pressed hard on the accelerator. Her car shot across the curb, crashed into the side of a house and killed three small children.

You can write your own editorial on that one. And don't forget to point out that anyone who takes driving lessons on a crowded city street is a menace to bystanders' lives.

Nearly everybody had a breakfast room in the old days, but it was called a kitchen. — Youngstown, O., Vindicator.

IT'S SPRING

IT'S spring,
And I have found
It true
The world will always
Smile at
You
If you will smile
At it and say,
"I'll do my very
Best today!"
So many look
With wide distrust
As though the world
Was filled with
Lust,
A greed to take
The things you own
And leave you
Mournful
And alone—
But spring
Comes 'round
And all the air
Is filled with vigor
Everywhere
The world says, "Come,
And take my wealth
There's too much
Here to keep Myself!"
And men who take
It at its word
And sail forth like
A happy bird
Someday will realize
Their dreams
And bask
In gentle sunlight
Beams—

And what we mean to say
Is,
If you plant seed in
Virgin soil
And early vow
That you will toil
To make your first
Great garden grow
You'll reap the harvest
That you sow,
And thus it is
If you will smile
And vow that living's
Worth the while
The spring will seem
Just twice as
Fair
And Fortune's wand
Will touch your
Hair.

"THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

SYNOPSIS

Because Jakie, son of Cantor Rabinowitz, prefers jazz to Synagogue music, he leaves home. Ten years elapse. Through Mary Dale, a dancer, Jakie, now Jack Robin, becomes a musical comedy jazz singer. The Cantor, discovering his son's profession, disowns him. Jack's show opens the Eve of Yom Kippur. Dillings, the backer of the show, jealous of Mary's love for Jack, withdraws his money, leaving Lee, the producer, dependent on Jack for success. The Cantor is ill and Yudelson, his friend, begs Jack to sing in the Synagogue that night. During dress rehearsal Mrs. Rabinowitz goes to the theatre to plead with her son to return.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued

"Yes, yes, I'm coming—right away, Gene," Jack called frantically. He caught hold of his mother's hand to make his one last plea. "Mama, if you only knew how the manager is depending on me—if you only knew how much this means to me—" he could hear the opening strains of his number floating back stage. The ragged, rhythmic air of the jazz tune rang in his ears. "They're going to make me a star, Mama." He was frantic now, his words tumbling out haphazardly. "They're going to put my name up in electric light—in electric lights on Broadway. I'll be rich, Mama, and famous—you can have everything you want—I've got to go on—they're depending on me—"

"There's your introduction, Mr. Robin." Gene turned away testily. It was no joke, dress rehearsal, and everyone should be watching his cue, ready to go on. It was enough to drive anyone mad. He paced up and down the narrow hall.

Now he was down on one knee—flinging his arms out.

"Yes, yes," Jack had answered him. But now he was on his knees before his mother, whirling in the Maelstrom of his own frenzy. "Mama, there's my introduction—they're playing for me now—Mama, I got to go on—I'll be right back, only fifteen minutes—wait for me, Mama. I haven't got time to tell you now—but I'll be right back—wait for me—"

"Mr. Robin, I'm going to get the blame for this. They've vamped that—" Gene's words were cut short.

"I'm coming, Gene, I'm coming." He started for the door. "Yudelson! Please talk to my Mama; try to explain to her."

Gene was hurrying the reluctant star down the corridor towards his entrance.

"Mama! Yudelson! Wait—please," he was calling back. "Don't go. Wait." He caught sight of Mary. "Mary!" he called, pointing towards his dressing room. "Talk to my mama—get her to wait until I come off." He shot out onto the stage, fell into his negro shamble, caught the lilt of the tune, smiled.

Mary went back to Jack's dressing room. "Wouldn't you like to come out where you can see your son, Mrs. Rabinowitz?" she asked gently.

The old lady gazed apathetically on the girl before her. She shook her head vaguely. Mary pulled the chair closer and helped Mrs. Rabinowitz into it. She looked at Yudelson and then at Jack's mother, but neither of them spoke. Through the open doorway came the sound of Jack's voice running off the preliminary patter of his song. Mary, knowing the words almost by heart, could follow in her mind's eye his every movement on the stage. But Mrs. Rabinowitz could hear nothing. She couldn't think. The events of the past two weeks had piled mountain high, until her brain was insensible to impression.

Chorus girls ran up and down the hallway getting into place to go on when their cue came in Jack's number. Some of them stopped and glanced curiously at the strange woman with the wig, huddled down in her chair, almost lost in the folds of her heavy shawl. They nudged each other and speculated as to the queer duo in the star's dressing room and wondered what significance it had. Then they pushed each other along and jostled into position, marking time to the music.

But Mrs. Rabinowitz saw none of this. The bare legs, the scantily clothed bodies that flashed by left no imprint on her mind. Before her eyes floated visions of the Cantor's pale, white face tossing on the pillow; his emaciated hands reaching out for her comforting reassurance. Then like some bad dream came the vision of Jack in his black make-up. That great pink mouth almost seemed to leer at her. She shuddered. That couldn't be Jakie's face. She drew back, looking about her frightened.

From the stage came Jack's voice, welling high above the throb bing syncopation of the orchestra Now he was down on one knee flinging his arms out—reaching towards the very hearts of his audience. Swaying from side to side, clasping and unclasping his hands, rolling his eyes. The gibberish of the words assumed a meaning; flowed fiercely and strongly into real sentiment; took on a startling, dramatic intensity The jagged measures became pulsating melodies moving in undulating currents of tones.

Into the chorus went the singer Once more the cry in the voice; the breaking, passionate throb of the plaintive out-pouring of the soul. It held all the elements of religious fanaticism; a ritual supplication of the atavistic bushman to his gods; a majestic litany cheapened yet made poignant by the tinseled trapping of Broadway

As Yudelson heard the voice he raised his head startled. He drew nearer the door to listen.

"That's Jakie!" he exclaimed in amazement.

But Mrs. Rabinowitz only swayed back and forth, unconsciously moving in time to the music. Mary nodded her head in confirmation. She, too, was listening intently, tapping her foot to the beat of the rhythm. She had never heard Jack sing as he was singing now. His voice had an even finer quality than before, a greater pathos, more expression. He seemed to be dramatizing every word. If he could only do it that well this evening, Mary thought. Mary wanted to share this feeling of the exultation with the other people in the room, but she could find no heart to rejoice, knowing the silent suffering of the woman beside her.

"And — I—want — you—all—to —know...
I—want—to—go...
Back—to—my—mammy..."

Jack was beating out the patter of the song, tapping his foot to the uneven throb of the rhythm.

"I'm through wanderin'—up—and —down...
I'm — goin' — to—strike—that —ol'—home—town—...
Where — the — folks'll—gather —roun'...
An' greet me..."

Jack's voice lilted, rose and fell. He was talking now. Sharp and staccato the words cut the air.

"I—want—to—go...
Back —to—my—mammy..."

Mrs. Rabinowitz could endure no more. Unsteadily she rose from her chair and blindly rushed toward the door. Mary caught her by the arm and Yudelson hurried forward to support her.

"We ain't goin' yet, Mrs. Rabinowitz," Yudelson tried to pull her back.

"That ain't my Jakie. That ain't my boy," she cried brokenly. "I'm going home."

"But Mrs. Rabinowitz, your son wants you to wait until he finishes singing," Mary began.

"No—no, no! I'm going home." She tried to push aside her two aides.

"I guess we better go," Yudelson nodded to Mary. "You tell Jakie."

Mary nodded. Yudelson and Mrs. Rabinowitz, struggling and stumbling over the coils of wire and rope, made their way to the stage door; their figures threw elongated, fantastic shadows against the lights back stage. They could barely hear the last lines of Jack's song.

"I've had my fling,
And it don't mean a thing—
It don't mean a thing—
My God—it don't mean—"

His voice broke in a sudden wave of heart-wracking agony. He choked. But his mother could no longer hear the sound of his song. It was swallowed up in the sunlight of the afternoon and the noises of the street.

BIBLE THOUGHT

GLORY OR SHAME—The wise shall inherit glory: but shame shall be the promotion of fools.—Prov. 3:33.

PRAYER—Lord, we would turn at Thy reproof and seek Thy counsel.

IMMORTALITY

THE Christian year finds its climax on Easter day, when it proclaims the one culminating truth of immortality. It asserts this not merely in confident trust in the words of Jesus, but in reliance on principles of eternal justice and right.

We know not whence we come nor where we go, nor are we directly told what our mission is here. But a voice within tells us that certain principles are right and vital, and that we must adhere to them.

We feel instinctively that the world must be founded on principles of justice, that, in the words of Matthew Arnold, there is "something not ourselves which makes for righteousness" We can not conceive of a world in which evil purposes were the dominating motives, for evil is self destructive, and such a world could not continue to exist.

There is some force working in us which seeks to establish righteousness. The power that rules this universe must be identical with that force.

No human father would want to bring children into the world to force them to suffer. It is inconceivable that the power that we call God is less loving than a human father. The creator is greater than the creature, and he must also be infinitely better.

Love must be at the bottom of the universe. A loving power would not bring us into the world merely to give us a fleeting glimpse of joy and then cruelly snatch it from us. That power must have some further opportunity to give us, to make up for the losses and wrongs of this life. So we believe and trust, and in that spirit we enter the temple of God on Easter day and worship the memory of Jesus, the expression of God's thought and purpose. But to expect to gain the immortal life, we must earn it by right living.

INTO A MAD MARKET

THE frenzied activities on the stock exchange recently, with tales of fabulous gains made by fortunate speculators, have led thousands of citizens who ordinarily leave the market strictly alone to "take a plunge" in the hope of making sudden gains.

This is unfortunate. The stock market is a tricky place even for the expert. It is no place at all for the man of small means. The most foolish thing you can do is risk a few hundred dollars that represent years of saving.

Of course, you may double your money. But, on the other hand, you may lose it all over night. If you have savings, leave them in the bank where they belong.

LEARNING TO DRIVE

AN Ohio woman the other day, set out to learn how to drive a new auto her brother had just bought her. She made her attempt on a crowded street, but since she cruised along at 10 miles an hour everything seemed safe enough.

Presently, however, she got in front of a street car. The motorman clanged his bell; in a hurried effort to get out of the way, the woman accidently pressed hard on the accelerator. Her car shot across the curb, crashed into the side of a house and killed three small children.

You can write your own editorial on that one. And don't forget to point out that anyone who takes driving lessons on a crowded city street is a menace to bystanders' lives.

Nearly everybody had a breakfast room in the old days, but it was called a kitchen. — Youngstown, O., Vindicator.

IT'S SPRING

IT'S spring,
And I have found
It true
The world will always
Smile at
You
If you will smile
At it and say,
"I'll do my very Best today!"
So many look
With wide distrust
As though the world
Was filled with
Lust,
A greed to take
The things you own
And leave you
Mournful
And alone—
But spring
Comes 'round
And all the air
Is filled with vigor
Everywhere
The world says, "Come,
And take my wealth
There's too much
Here to keep Myself!"
And men who take
It at its word
And sail forth like
A happy bird
Someday will realize
Their dreams
And bask
In gentle sunlight
Beams—

And what we mean to say
Is,
If you plant seed in
Virgin soil
And early vow
That you will toil
To make your first
Great garden grow
You'll reap the harvest
That you sow,
And thus it is
If you will smile
And vow that living's
Worth the while
The spring will seem
Just twice as
Fair
And Fortune's wand
Will touch your
Hair.

W. C. T. U. Meeting

The Circleville Woman's Christian Temperance Union met in the M. E. church parlors Friday evening and held their regular monthly meeting. After devotions, the president, Mrs. Lulu Marion took charge of the business session, during which some important items were discussed and reports given.

The program of the evening was in charge of Mrs. Ulm, her subject being, "The Importance of Prayer, as Practiced by Christ." Several scripture references on prayer, and also quotations from some famous poets were read by several ladies.

Mrs. Fay Hilliard read a very interesting leaflet, "A Wonderful Trip Through The Bible With Billy Sunday." Mrs. Mack Noggle and Miss Stella Grimes sang a appropriate duet, "When Christians Learn To Tithe." Miss Charlotte Phelps read a paper, "When Money Speaks." We want prohibition, are we willing to pay for it in dollars and cents? Will a man rob God? But we do in tithes and offerings. Who did Jesus put into Hell—not the repentant prodigal, but the rich man who feasted every day, who was cast into outer darkness—not the woman who was caught in adultery, but the rich farmer. Yes, money talks. What is it saying about you and me?"

Song, "There Is A Safe Retreat."

Mrs. Lucy B. Price and Mrs. Marion gave some gleanings from the Law Enforcement meeting, held in Columbus, last week, which they attended. The local Institute will be held in the U. B. Church the last Friday in April. After the benediction, delicious refreshments of home-made doughnuts and coffee, were served by the committee, Mrs. Mary H. Dunlap, chairman.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

—By Adele Garrison—

Princess Olina Expresses an Unmistakable Interest in Noel.

Was the Princess Olina of Transrania really as artless as she appeared while telling me that the place in her royal tour which she would remember longest was the night club where she first had seen Noel Veritzen?

The inference, of course, was unmistakable. She was in love with the young violinist. He dwarfed all other men in her estimation, even the extremely attractive Prince Georges of Trees, whom we knew under the name of George Logan Jackson. But was her betraying speech simply the unconscious revelation of a young girl's heart, or was she deliberately giving me notice that she meant to annex Noel, with a sub-current of warning to keep Mary Harrison, Dicky's lovely young niece, away from him?

These were the questions which swirled around my brain while I cautiously chose my answer to her query concerning Noel's rare skill with a violin.

"I think 'wonderful' is really the only word to express his personality," I said, smiling. "But while his playing is far, far above that of the average professional, yet I am afraid I cannot agree with you that he surpasses the great masters."

"I didn't mean quite that," she returned. "I meant that I'd rather listen to him than to the greatest of them all. I'm so glad he's out of that night club. He'll never go back to it, will he?"

Irritatedly, I wondered how far afield—she would pursue this question of the young violinst's future, leaving her absorbing story of her escape hanging in space. But I forced my voice to nonchalance.

"I am sure he will not. It was always most distasteful to him, but it was the only livelihood open to him after——"

I stopped short, dismayed by the thought that I had been on the brink of referring to Noel's troubled history. But Princess Olina nodded comprehendingly.

"You mean, of course, after that college affair and his estrangement from his father," she said, while I choked back an exclamation of astonishment. How had she learned that old story? Had Noel himself, ordinarily the soul of reticence, confided in her? If so I told myself, she had progressed much farther in her veiled contest with Mary Harrison for the boy's affection than I had guessed. A more plausible explanation was ready to my hand however. Philip Veritzen already had betrayed his anxiety to throw Noel and the young mistress of The Larches together, while separating his son from Mary Harrison, although his reasons for such a course were unfathomable. But it was entirely probable that he had aroused the girl's sympathetic interest by an ingeniously constructed version of Noel's story.

I was to receive no farther enlightment upon the subject from Princess Olina, however. That she regretted her betraying little speech I saw by her quick flush and the haste with which she went back to the story of her escape from the royal party.

"I'll never finish telling you about my getting away if I keep wandering off like this," she said energetically. "It takes a long time to tell it, but my actual escape from the hotel didn't take long. Anna had brought a complete outfit of clothing different from any I had and had given it to the maid we had paid to help us. There was a small suite on the floor next above ours whose tenant was absent during the day and in some way—I thought I'd better not inquire just how, the maid got the pass key to that floor for a minute or two when all of our family were at luncheon and smuggled me into that apartment. She'd put the clothes in there before.

"I didn't dare take any of my pretty toilet things, for I didn't want to carry any bundle out of the hotel so I just tied up my jewels in a handkerchief, and when I got into that room I put on the dress and coat Anna had sent me right over the one I had. I already had put on shoes and stockings that looked like those worn by thousands of other girls, and I put the jewels into a big handbag which Anna had sent. The hat she'd sent came down almost over my eyes and the coat had a big collar, so when I opened the door and slipped down the corridor to the elevator, I looked like anything but myself. There was nothing left in the room save a big piece of brown paper to show anybody had been in there, and I knew the maid could smuggle that out."

Fellowship of Prayer

A Holy Week Devotion

Prepared by Rev. Jay T. Stocking, D.D., for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Copyright 1928

Topic for Holy Week:
"RELIGION AND HOPE"
Thursday
"Freedom Through Religion"
SCRIPTURE Memory Verse
"If, therefore, the Son shall make you free ye shall be free indeed" (John 8 36).

Read: John 21.15-22.

MEDITATION — Two things that threaten hope are environment and convention. We tend to become victims of things and people. "The danger of all human fellowship" said Professor Brown "is that it will set limits to growth. We accept so easy the standards of our environment." Religion helps to free a man from the bondage of things and people by emphasizing the worth of the spirit and of each personality. If a man values his own spirit and individuality he will be free from the tyranny of things and conventions. He is free to strive and hope for his highest development. To use a phase of Goethe's, he may be "bound without" but he is "boundless within."

PRAYER: O Thou who dost give liberty to men, set us free we pray Thee from all bounds which enslave us, fetter us and prevent us from becoming ourselves. Strengthen us to walk in this new day without fear or any kind of bondage. Amen.

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

—By Adele Garrison—

Princess Olina Expresses an Unmistakable Interest in Noel.

Was the Princess Olina of Transvania really as artless as she appeared while telling me that the place in her royal tour which she would remember longest was the night club where she first had seen Noel Veritzen?

The inference, of course, was unmistakable. She was in love with the young violinist. He dwarfed all other men in her estimation, even the extremely attractive Prince Georges of Trees, whom we knew under the name of George Logan Jackson. But was her betraying speech simply the unconscious revelation of a young girl's heart, or was she deliberately giving me notice that she meant to annex Noel, with a sub-current of warning to keep Mary Harrison, Dicky's lovely young niece, away from him?

These were the questions which swirled around my brain while I cautiously chose my answer to her query concerning Noel's rare skill with a violin.

"I think 'wonderful' is really the only word to express his personality," I said, smiling. "But while his playing is far, far above that of the average professional, yet I am afraid I cannot agree with you that he surpasses the great masters."

"I didn't mean quite that," she returned. "I meant that I'd rather listen to him than to the greatest of them all. I'm so glad he's out of that night club. He'll never go back to it, will he?"

Irritatedly, I wondered how far afield she would pursue this question of the young violinst's future, leaving her absorbing story of her escape hanging in space. But I forced my voice to nonchalance.

"I am sure he will not. It was always most distasteful to him, but it was the only livelihood open to him after——"

I stopped short, dismayed by the thought that I had been on the brink of referring to Noel's troubled history. But Princess Olina nodded comprehendingly.

"You mean, of course, after that college affair and his estrangement from his father," she said, while I choked back an exclamation of astonishment. How had she learned that old story? Had Noel himself, ordinarily the soul of reticence, confided in her? If so, I told myself, she had progressed much farther in her veiled contest with Mary Harrison for the boy's affection than I had guessed. A more plausible explanation was ready to my hand, however. Philip Veritzen already had betrayed his anxiety to throw Noel and the young mistress of The Larches together, while separating his son from Mary Harrison, although his reasons for such a course were unfathomable. But it was entirely probable that he had aroused the girl's sympathetic interest by an ingeniously constructed version of Noel's story.

I was to receive no farther enlightment upon the subject from Princess Olina, however. That she regretted her betraying little speech I saw by her quick flush and the haste with which she went back to the story of her escape from the royal party.

"I'll never finish telling you about my getting away if I keep wandering off like this," she said energetically. "It takes a long time to tell it, but my actual escape from the hotel didn't take long. Anna had brought a complete outfit of clothing different from any I had and had given it to the maid we had paid to help us. There was a small suite on the floor next above ours whose tenant was absent during the day and in some way—I thought I'd better not inquire just how, the maid got the pass key to that floor for a minute or two when all of our family were at luncheon and smuggled me into that apartment. She'd put the clothes in there before.

"I didn't dare take any of my pretty toilet things, for I didn't want to carry any bundle out of the hotel, so I just tied up my jewels in a handkerchief, and when I got into that room I put on the dress and coat Anna had sent me right over the one I had. I already had put on shoes and stockings that looked like those worn by thousands of other girls, and I put the jewels into a big handbag which Anna had sent. The hat she'd sent came down almost over my eyes and the coat had a big collar, so when I opened the door and slipped down the corridor to the elevator, I looked like anything but myself. There was nothing left in the room save a big piece of brown paper to show anybody had been in there, and I knew the maid could smuggle that out."

Fellowship of Prayer

A Holy Week Devotion

Prepared by Rev. Jay T. Stocking, D.D., for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Topic for Holy Week
"RELIGION AND HOPE"
Thursday
"Freedom Through Religion"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "If, therefore, the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36).

Read: John 21:15-22.

MEDITATION: — Two things that threaten hope are environment and convention. We tend to become victims of things and people. "The danger of all human fellowship" said Professor Brown, "is that it will set limits to growth. We accept so easy the standards of our environment." Religion helps to free a man from the bondage of things and people by emphasizing the worth of the spirit and of each personality. If a man values his own spirit and individuality he will be free from the tyranny of things and conventions. He is free to strive and hope for his highest development. To use a phase of Goethe's, he may be "bound without" but he is "boundless within."

PRAYER: O Thou who dost give liberty to men, set us free v pray Thee from all bounds which enslave us, fetter us and prevent us from becoming ourselves. Strengthen us to walk in this new day without fear or any kind of bondage. Amen.

GIANTS AND CUBS GOING STRONG THIS SPRING

EARLY DOPE IS THEY'LL FIGHT FOR BIG FLAG

But Early Dope Doesn't Mean a Thing, According to Sport Expert.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 5—If early speed could be made to mean anything more than it usually does, which is approximately nothing, the New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs would figure today to make a two-club matter of the National League event this season. This pair is running riot through its exhibition schedules and without question both of them are yards beyond the rest of the field in the matter of spring development.

That goes for both leagues, too, as the Yanks, Senators and Red Sox have fared poorly or not at all in their inter-league series: the Athletics and Browns have done nothing about which to ring the song in the old tome belfrey and the Tigers, White Sox and Indians have been occupied largely with minor league outfits.

Compared with the Giants and Cubs, the champion Pirates and the ex-champion Cardinals have looked simply immense—like a flat foot in a florist's window. The Pirates, as a matter of fact, have furnished much of the sustenance for the Cubs' record of fourteen victories in their first sixteen exhibition games. The 1927 champions having been knocked off for five straight up to yesterday.

Not So Good

This performance might come as slightly more acceptable to McCarthy if it happened in September instead of March but it represents fairly enough the spring speed of the two contenders, at that. The answer is that "Kiki" Cuyler and Hack Wilson have gone on a hitting debauch and this, added to excellent pitching, has sent the Cubs careering along at a mad pace. If they really have infield weaknesses, these will become more apparent when Cuyler and Wilson decide to step back into character

This, they must inevitably do, unless we have misjudged them these several years. Nobody, for example, could expect Cuyler to maintain his crazy pace of the first fourteen games, during which he scored no less than twenty-two runs, got twenty-six hits for fifty-one toal bases, socked seven home runs, and batted .434. Meantime, Wilson was getting six homers in his first twelve games and batting 381. How could the Cubs go wrong with that kind of hitting behind steady and sometimes brilliant pitching? The fact is they couldn't and can't.

Twelfth Victory

The Giants' streak of eleven straight was brought up to date yesterday with another victory over the Washington Senators McGraw certainly has that ball club moving along and, if there is anything permanent about the recent hitting of men like O'Doul and Cohen, the outfit is made. However, I'll be polite and let some one else try to answer that one.

All I can venture is that the Giants turned loose two nine inning pitchers a few days ago in Benton and Henry, who allowed the Senators only three runs over eighteen innings. which is pitching this time of the year; that the club is hitting far over its collective head an dthat Roush is ready for the season's opening for the first time in years.

It would be strange if the Giants won after trading Hornsby for Luke McLuke and his brother, would it not? No. Gregory, it wouldn't be strange at all. It would be almost a miracle.

Every noble aspiration is a whisper from God telling us to struggle upward.

BIG BOUT CARD IS READY FOR FANS TONIGHT

Benny Cohen, Columbus, to Meet Johnny Dundee, Toledo, in Main Go Here

Fight fans are to get a real treat tonight when the Sunshine Club brings together Benny Cohen, the scrappy Jew, against Johnny Dundee, fast-stepping fighting Irishman of Toledo Cohen fights out of Columbus

Benny is known as the clever boxer who fought a draw in Harrisburg last week with Joe O'Malley and who beat Johnny Carpenter when Cohen fought as a featherweight

Dundee has defeated about all the boys his weight around Toledo and in fact about everywhere where he has donned the mitts in Ohio. And how he loves to fight! Packing a kick in either hand, he's happiest when he's mixing it up.

Both boys are very anxious to win because both are anxious for the state title.

Dundee has put the K O on 65 out of 75 opponents.

The Semi-Final brings together two boys of Main-Go calibre The fast stepping Rees Elliot, who fought a wonderful Main-Go. with Joe Dragon, the Cincinnati Sensation, recently, will oppose K. O. Brown, who has dropped 90 per cent of his opponents. These boys are only going on a semi-final to get a charge at the well liked Irishman, Mickey O'Riely, of Circleville. O'Riely states that he intends to challenge the winner. The promoters have been very lucky in securing such a nifty card.

In the Prelims, Charley Scott, clever local boy, will oppose the hard hitting, Kid Moats. Both have been training hard in local gyms.

Another Prelim will bring together the well built Frosty Diehl, of Chillicothe. who will oppose the hard-hitting Jack Shea, of O. S. U.

Two colored boys will open the show, Salty Toles vs. Kid Brown of Chillicothe.

The card is composed of 28 rounds of real scrapping. No raise of prices have been made, regardless of the high class bill Prices remaining at 75c, $1.00, and $1.50 Tickets can be reserved at Mykrantz drug store. Women and children 25c.

KNOXVILLE Tenn, April 5 — Babe Ruth has hit two homers in as many days and the other Regulars of the New York Yankees are whaling the ball, but poor pitching has resulted in a long string of defeats for the world's champions. They got fourteen hits yesterday, including Ruth's second homer of the season but Nashville pounded Ehealey and Moore and nosed out the Yanks in the tenth, 11 to 10

The New Yorkers play Knoxville today.

CHARLOTTE, N. C, April 5—The Washington Senators must win their four remaining games with the New York Giants to capture the spring series between the two clubs. The Giants, in winning their eleventh straight game at Greenville yesterday, made it four out of five from the Nationals. Led by Lindstrom, who clouted four hits including a home run, the New Yorkers battered Griffin and Zachary and took a 9 to 7 verdict.

ATLANTA, April 5 — Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn's mound ace, has temporarily lost his cunning. He was touched for eleven hits in five innings by the Atlanta Crackers here yesterday and the Robins were nosed out, 9 to 8, after they had overcome a seven-run lead by scoring eight runs in the third inning. The Robins will endeavor to square accounts with the Crackers today.

LOUISVILLE, K. Y., April 5—The White Sox continued their winning streak against the Colonels of the American association, taking the first game here 5 to 2. Ten innings were requested to turn the trick. The Sox won on six hits against ten for Louisville. Barnabe and Adkins did Sox hurling.

KANSAS CITY, MO., April 5—Chicago's clever Cubs were set today to launch their final exhibition series of the training season. The Kansas City Blues are the expected victims. The Bruins have won 14 out of their 16 training games to date. They expect to make it 18 out of 20 before leaving here.

That many million men can't be wrong

FIGURES show that more Prince Albert is smoked by experienced jimmy-pipers than any other brand. You might give any of a dozen reasons why they bought their first tin of P. A. But their tenth and their hundredth . . . only demonstrated quality can account for that! Wouldn't you say so?

The very fragrance of P. A. is an indication of the quality-taste still to come. The first fire-up makes good on the aromatic promise. Cool as a steeple-jack doing his stuff. Sweet as getting back to earth again safely. Mild and mellow and long-burning. Some tobacco, Men, and no mistake!

If you don't know the joys of a pipe packed with P. A., get busy and make up for lost time. No matter what your present set-up may be, try Prince Albert. It is not an experiment, but an experience — a little journey into a land of pipe-joy that you'll take many times every day.

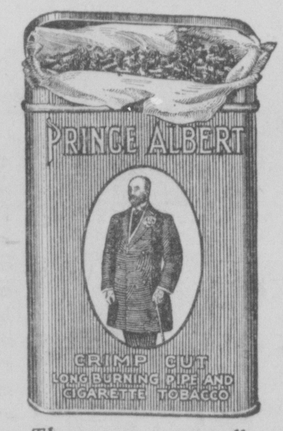
That many million men can't be wrong

FIGURES show that more Prince Albert is smoked by experienced jimmy-pipers than any other brand. You might give any of a dozen reasons why they bought their first tin of P. A. But their tenth and their hundredth . . . only demonstrated quality can account for that! Wouldn't you say so?

The very fragrance of P. A. is an indication of the quality-taste still to come. The first fire-up makes good on the aromatic promise. Cool as a steeple-jack doing his stuff. Sweet as getting back to earth again safely. Mild and mellow and long-burning. Some tobacco, Men, and no mistake!

If you don't know the joys of a pipe packed with P. A., get busy and make up for lost time. No matter what your present set-up may be, try Prince Albert. It is not an experiment, but an experience — a little journey into a land of pipe-joy that you'll take many times every day.



The revenue stamp tells you—TWO full ounces in every tin.

PRINCE ALBERT
—no other tobacco is like it!

BUSINESS MAN HELD IN DEATH

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., April 5—(INS)—Frederick Hinman Knowlton, Jr., prosperous young business man of Framingham, was held today in connection with the death of Marguerite Isabelle Stewart, Beverly teacher-supervisor, whose bruised body was found beside the Cambridge turnpike in Concord last Friday night.

Knowlton, who has a wife and three children, admitted he had been friendly with the girl, had been on an automobile ride with her the night she died and washed and renovated his roadster with water and chloride of lime the next day.

Grilling of Knowlton, who is 34 years old and operates an electric and automobile battery establishment in Framingham, was interruptted long enough to let him hav ea little sleep and to take him to Concord district court for arraignment on a murder charge.

BREMEN IS READY FOR BIG FLIGHT

DUBLIN, April 5 — (INS) — With the Bremen in perfect shape for an immediate take-off, the German fliers today hoped to be able to attempt their Trans-Atlantic flight within a few days.

The wooden runway constructed for the plane's hop-off is being extended at Baldonnel airfield so that if weather conditions improve over the Atlantic, the flight will not be held up by a soggy field.

Ocean Runs Up Hill And We're Not Crazy, Folks

WASHINGTON, April 5 — The oceans run up hill. Despite the fact that "water finds its level" the Pacific ocean at the Isthmus of Panama is about six inches higher than the Atlantic, Henry G. Avers, of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey said today.

Both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans slope upward to the north, according to levelling operations conducted by the Geodetic survey. English scientists have found that the same conditions exist on the eastern rim of the Atlantic, and while accurate measurements have not been taken experts assume that other oceans show smililar slope tendencies.

"The coast survey is trying to find out why these conditions exist," Avers said. "The ocean slope may be due to prevailing winds, barametric pressure or other meteorological conditions, all of which have been suggested but not proven."

Reindeer Meat

Reindeer is not a game animal and the meat is not similar to venison. It compares, rather, with beef. In flavor it can best be classed between lamb and the breast of mallard duck.

Day after day it becomes more apparent that the unrivaled popularity of the Bigger and Better Chevrolet is due to its basic elements of superiority.

And the greatest factor of all is the effortless driving it provides. It steers with the weight of the hand—for the worm and gear steering mechanism is fitted with ball bearings throughout . . . even at the front axle knuckles. The clutch is velvety smooth in action and the gear-shift lever responds to the lightest touch. Acceleration is swift and certain, while big non-locking four-wheel brakes assure perfect control under every condition of highway and traffic.

—Pickaway county came in for some excitement according to files of an exchange, dated March 31, 1865. The story says: The good people of the village of Carroll, Pickaway County, we are informed are in feverish state of excitement over the supposed discovery of "oil diggings" about three miles distant from that town Some time ago a well was dug, and the combustable emission therefrom became ignited, probably by letting down a candle to test the "damps" It continued to burn for several months, until the dry season came on and water ceased to appear Nothing was thought of it, however, at the time, as the petroleum contagion did not then exist. About a week since, someone acquainted with the fact suddenly was struck with the idea that it was an oil well Communicating this to his friends, the excitement soon grew intense, and the result is a company is now being formed, and we may ere long expect sufficient oil for home consumption from the region of Carroll.

PLOT AGAINST SOVIET REGIME IS UNEARTHED

Most Dangerous Revolutionary Plan Expected to Result in Death of 60.

MOSCOW, April 5— (INS) — The veil of secrecy which has shrouded what is alleged to be one of the most dangerous revolutionary plots against the Soviet government in seven years, has been lifted sufficiently to disclose that the ringleaders of the Schachti district coal mining conspiracy in the Don Basin, were members of one of the most distinguished Monarchist families of the Czar's regime, it was learned today.

A score of the 60 persons implicated are almost certain to be convicted and sentenced to death

The connection of six German engineers, two of whom have been released, has not been cleared up

Prisoners Held

The prisoners are held at Rostov, where the Germans have just been interviewed by the secretary of the German embassy.

After the arrests by the Gpu (Soviet secret police) the information was circulated that the prisoners were implicated in a "Sabotage conspiracy' to hamper development of the coal mining industry in the Don basin. It was not until later that the political significance of the arrests became known.

The Bessergenevsky mine, one of the richest coal veins in the basin, is said to have been dismantled completely Kolodub is alleged to have erased it from the record of mining properties in an effort to hide its existence from the Communists. The Novo-Azovsky mine was flooded

British capitalists, the public prosecutor's office claims, had an interest in these mines.

Cite Bribes

There are vague hints that as much as $100,000 (in German marks) passed through Russian hands as bribes The ringleaders, however, are said by the police to be Yemelyan Kolodub, a millionaire mine owner, who owned one of the finest racing stables in Russia before the revolution, his brother, Andre: his nephew, Cyril Kolodub; his relatives Bebenko and Matusenko, and a number of intimate friends. The elder Kolodub fought unsuccessfully during the Civil war to retain his properties. After the Red army captured the district, Kolodub is said to have edged his way in as manager of a large Soviet coal mine. Then he gave responsible engineering positions to relatives and friends

Former owners of mines in the Don Basin, who had fled during the revolution, are alleged to have approached Kolodub with a proposition "to hold the mines for their rightful owners because in three years there will be armed foreign intervention and the Soviet regime will blow up"

To this end Kolodub, with the aid of foreign and Russian confederates, is accused of having prevented the exploitation of the most profitable mines confiscated from their former owners ordered others flooded, caused explosions and wrecked machinery.

LONDON, April 5— (INS) — Despite emphatic denials by the Soviet government that Leon Trotzky, deposed Russian leader, had been shot, an exchange telegraph dispatch from Heslingfords today stated that diplomatic circles at the Finnish capital were informed that Trotzky had been accidentally shot while on a hunting trip

The exchange dispatch stated that the bullet which struck the Bolshevist leader was accidentally fired by a companion of Trotzky on the trip

The Russian legation at Helsingfors refused to either confirm or deny the report but it was generally credited by Communist circles there according to the dispatch

DROWN IN RIVER

COLUMBUS O April 5—(INS) — Leo Jones 10 is dead at the home of his father Lee Jones today, drowning victim of the first spring school holiday He slipped from a dam into the Olentangy river as he played with his companions His body was not found for four hours, as his companions were too frightened to report the tragedy.

CITY PREPARES FOR OILING OF STREETS HERE

Other Legislative Matters of Civic Interest Taken Up By Council.

An ordinance instructing the Director of Public Service to advertise for bids for furnishing oil with which to oil the streets of the city of Circleville was received and read and then referred to the Safety Committee at the regular meeting of City Council on Wednesday night.

All members were present with President Goeller presiding.

Solicitor Adkins reported a meeting in the near future with officials of the State Board of Health, at which meeting several citizens are expected to attend, looking toward the purification of the Scioto river

Report $54.70 Fines

Service Director Miller asked permission of council to dispose of the old fountain in front of the Court House, and this request was granted

Mayor Hedges reported fines licenses and fees collected during the month of March in the sum of $54.70 and this report was received and ordered placed on file.

A claim against the city by Corbin Justice in the sum of $30 25 was presented, for repairs to automobile which he claimed to have been damaged by striking a broken lid over a manhole in South Court street. This claim was referred to the Committee on Law and Claims, together with the City Engineer and City Solicitor.

City Engineer Sweetman submitted plans, profiles and estimates for the construction of sanitary sewers on Edison avenue and Pickaway street: Clinton and Ohio streets and East Union street the estimated cost of which is $6 500. This report of the engineer was received and placed on file.

Ask More Police Aid

A petition signed by George W Snider and others asking for additional police protection in the south side of the city, was received and read, and the same referred to the Safety Committee.

Mr Baker reported to Council that the County Commissioners were contemplating the paving of the alley south of the Court House, and wanted to know the amount the city would be willing to pay towards this improvement. Mr Baker was requested to ascertain the probable amount of the cost which the city would be expected to pay, before council would obligate itself to this expenditure

Will Attempt to Pass Farm Relief Bill Before Flood Legislation.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 5 — The senate farm bloc buckled down today to a drive for enactment of the compromise McNary-Haugen farm relief bill within the next week.

The bloc leaders were greatly encouraged by the action of corn belt farmers in unanimously endorsing the new bill at their Des Moines conference. The corn belt men, representing twenty-three groups of farm organizations, "cordially approve" the bill.

Would Precede Flood Bill

A movement meanwhile was started in the house to get the farm measure considered in the lower branch of congress before action is taken on the flood control bill The farm bloc spokesmen, if defeated in this effort, will try to have their measure acted upon after flood control.

The new bill, after being sidetracked in the senate for two days for an appropriation bill, will be debated the rest of this week, its sponsors were hopeful of getting a final vote by next Tuesday or Wednesday. This would enable the house to pass upon it before the end of April, allowing a full month for presidential action and an effort to reenact it over a veto if it met White House disapproval

SINCLAIR PART IN OIL "GAME" COST HIM MUCH

Has Been Divorced From Money That Would Make Several Wealthy.

By GEORGE E. DURNO
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 5—What price prosecution?

A much hampered inquiry today developed that Harry F. Sinclair's part in the oil scandals of the Harding administration has cost him some exceedingly important money during the past five years.

Since the winter of 1923, when the Senate first thrust an inquisitive nose into the ways and means by which he acquired a lease on the Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve, up to the present moment when he is about to stand trial for criminal conspiracy against the government in connection therewith, Sinclair has been divorced from a steady stream of money that should make a number of readers independently wealthy for life

The oil man is convinced he is being "persecuted" He thinks that federal agents have been constantly on his trail watching his every movement since 1923. Well he might if his friends are to be believed. They estimate that five years ago his fortune was in excess of a hundred million dollars some placed it as high as $120 000 000

Huge Sums

Today the estimate ranges from

EX-SENATOR AND RAILROAD FIGURE DIES OF PNEUMONIA AT AGE OF 93 IN NEW YORK HOME

NEW YORK, April 5—(INS)—Chauncey Mitchell Depew, chairman of the board of directors of the New York Central railroad, former United States Senator and long a prominent figure in the Republican party, died of bronchial pneumonia at his home here shortly before 4 30 o'clock this morning. He was 93 years old.

Mr Depew suffered a slight chill upon his return from St. Petersburg, Fla., last week, and was confined to his home with a cold. Late yesterday his physician announced that his condition had taken a turn for the worse, but stated that his general condition was not alarming.

Despite the reassurances of the doctors, Mr. Depew's entire family was called to the home. The relatives at the bedside were Mrs. Depew; a son, Chauncey M. Depew, Jr.; a niece, Miss Anne Depew Paulding; and a nephew, Chauncey Depew Steele, of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y.

Although bronchial pneumonia is considered a serious illness for a man of Mr. Depew's age, physicians in attendance were confident almost until the end that he would recover, and the suddenness of his death came as something of a shock. He partook of some light nourishment yesterday and last night his temperature dropped from 104 to 102, according to a bulletin issued by his physicians.

Formal announcement of Mr. Depew's death was made by his physicians, Dr. Samuel W. Lamtert and Dr. H. Lyman Hooker, at the Depew home, 27 West 54th street. Only yesterday morning they had announced that the noted patient was suffering from nothing worse than a cold and that there was no cause for alarm.

Still Very Active

Mr. Depew was still active this year as the head of the New York Central's Board of Directors. He had planned to attend the Republican National convention in Kansas City on June 12. The Cleveland convention of 1924 was the first he had missed since 1888.

Mr. Depew had made plans for an informal birthday celebration on April 23. On that date he would have been 94 years old. Upon each of his birthdays in recent years Mr. Depew had received newspaper reporters at his office for interviews. Upon these occasions he would reveal his philosophy on politics, business, art, the "younger generation" and every subject upon which the eager reporters questioned him.

These interviews were liberally spiced by Mr. Depew's humor. He was one of the most entertaining after-dinner speakers in the country, and demands for his presence as toastmaster at banquets were unceasing.

Gifted as an orator, Depew became a prominent public figure early in life.

Entered Politics Early

Before he was thirty he served as a member of the state assembly of New York and as secretary of state.

In 1872, when he was 38 years of age, he ran for lieutenant governor on the Liberal-Republican ticket but was defeated. A few years before he had been confirmed United States minister to Japan but had declined the appointment.

He then became counsel for the New York Central railroad. His ability in railroad affairs won him a high place in the world of transportation. He became president of the New York Central in 1882 and held offices and directorships on many other roads. He was president of the road until 1898 and from then on was chairman of the board of directors. He was also president of the West Shore railroad.

In 1885 he declined election as United States senator. He also declined an appointment as secretary of state in the cabinet of President Benjamin Harrison. At the Republican National convention of 1888 he received 99 votes for the presidential nomination.

Depew was reputed to have been many times a millionaire and a power behind the political horizon in the heyday of of his career

HIS CREED

NEW YORK, April 5—(UP)—Chauncey Depew believed in youth, in moderation, in happiness and in his country,—and with this creed for life he expected to live to be 100 years old.

"If I get past a hundred I'll leave the rest to Providence," he once said.

Other characteristic sayings that Depew gave to the public through his annual birthday interviews included:

"The automobile has wiped out one picturesque, charming and delightful feature of American life, and that is the family horse. The family horse and buggy did more than any other one thing to promote matrimony and happy domestic life."

"So far as my religious views go I am thoroughly orthodox. I absolutely believe there is a just God. I think that God gives everybody a square deal. I believe in church going Evolution? I believe in that. A young man starting out without God will be a failure."

DIFFERENT TAX PLAN CONSIDERED

WASHINGTON, April 5 — (INS)—Settlement of a large per cent of tax litigation by the internal revenue bureau instead of by the board of tax appeals, would be affected under a plan now being considered by the treasury.

There is danger of complete breakdown of the government's machinery for adjusting contested income tax cases if the present method of settlement is retained, officials said. The appeals board now has pending 21,000 cases involving more than $685 000,000.

RELEASED ONCE, ARRESTED AGAIN

Plummer Crago, who was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of burglarizing the Gem restaurant, Noah Myers proprietor, was released, as the body ignored the charge, but he was placed under arrest on another charge that of failure to provide and was released on a bond of $500.

TO BE RETURNED FOR NON-SUPPORT

Charles Estep was placed under arrest at Charleston, W Va. Wednesday on orders of Sheriff Frank Davis

Estep was indicted on the charge of failure to provide

He will be brought to this city as soon as extradition papers are issued by Governor Trapnell, announced by the April term of the grand jury

GROCER ESCAPES IN CAR ACCIDENT

George F Prosser grocer had a narrow escape from being injured Wednesday evening while returning home from his farm.

At a point in the Adelphi pike he met a truck driven by Guy Hoffner he says an Oakland sedan and a collision occurred the car turned over

Mr Prosser was thrown to one side of the car but was not injured

Two broken panes of glass in the car was the only damage The car was driven home on its own wheels after being righted by the wrecker of the Circleville Motors

100 YEARS--A CENTURY AGO IN CIRCLEVILLE--100 YEARS

There aren't very many people in Circleville can remember when this happened, but anyway the Public Library has discovered this news from The Circleville Herald 100 years ago today April 5, 1828:

WINTER IN APRIL — After a winter so mild that its like is scarcely remembered by our oldest citizens — and when our gardens were blooming with young vegetation — we are met by a reverse. And while we are penning this paragraph, the snow is descending, in a manner not unbecoming the heart of winter' The ground is now covered with a greater depth of snow than at any time during the winter, it still descends and has every appearance of continuation It seems as if nature had lost her reckoning
